BENTONG - Head for the Hills

The Bentong district includes historic Bentong and several hilltop resorts. While Bentong is a service town for the surrounding agricultural district, the mountainous destinations of the Genting Highlands, Bukit Tinggi and Janda Baik attract a variety of holidaymakers, from those seeking exhilarating fun at Resorts World Genting to others who love Janda Baik's tranquillity.

Bentong was settled in the late 19th century after tin was discovered, and now the district's farms are renowned for durian and ginger. A stroll around the old town and a visit to Bentong Gallery reveal historic detail alongside contemporary street art. The town's morning market and Saturday night market are not to be missed. Nearby, Chamang Waterfall on the Perting River is a popular recreation area. The forests around Bentong Hot Springs appeal for therapeutic mineral water and several small resorts.

Bentong also has a reputation as a foodie town, where Lemang To'ki is famous for its grilled chicken and lemang, while Yuen Kee Kopitiam is home to delicious coffee, wonton noodles and yong tau foo. Kow Po Ice Cream House has been serving delicious sundaes for decades.

Resorts World Genting is Malaysia's premier family leisure and entertainment resort, with fun activities in the cool air. Being fully integrated, visitors can enjoy enticing restaurants, hotels, shops, shows and sports. Extensive conference, meetings and exhibition facilities accommodate major events. Skytropolis Indoor Theme Park features exhilarating rides complemented by SkySymphony light and sound shows. The 18-hole, Ronald Fream-designed Resorts World Awana is one of Malaysia's leading golf courses and is renowned for its mountainous layout. Golfers can stay at the Awana Hotel and dine in several outlets. Nearby, Genting Highlands Premium Outlets feature dining and beverage concepts plus leading global designer brands at competitive prices. Golfers can play the course and ride the Awana Skyway to stay at the summit, where there is a hotel for everybody. Choices range from the exclusive and luxurious Crockfords Hotel to the First World Hotel, recognised as the world's largest hotel with a total of 7,351 rooms.

Bukit Tinggi's French-themed Colmar Tropicale is another hilltop resort inspired by the unique architecture of Colmar in Alsace, France. Its cobblestoned square is surrounded by shops, restaurants and a hotel. Nearby attractions include an adventure park and a Japanese garden. The Japanese Village of manicured gardens and koi ponds is especially popular for photography, while the neighbouring botanic gardens support cool-climate plants. Meanwhile, The Adventure Park offers thrilling activities that visitors can try, such as walking across a suspension bridge, climbing a challenging rock wall and zip-lining through the rainforest canopy.

Janda Baik, the quietest and most dispersed of the hilltop retreats, is renowned for its rainforests, intimate resorts, small farm holdings and village lifestyle. Pines flourish here and views extend over forested hills down to Bukit Tinggi Village and across to Selesa Hills. There are various activities available from biking, swimming, tubing, ATV trail blazing, horse riding, archery, abseiling and rafting. The Benus River flows through the village and past picnic areas to provide an opportunity to cool off. Black Pearl Adventure operates some thrilling ATV adventures from its base in the village.

Figs and passionfruit are grown in Janda Baik and served in some of its restaurants and resorts. Fig Malaysia Farm has a shop selling all kind of fig products like jam, tea and coffee. The accommodation in Janda Baik is mostly small scale, ranging from glamping to architecture-designed retreats. Tiarasa Escapes features luxuriously appointed tented and tree-top villas, while Seri Pengantin offers family accommodation next to a jungle stream and a pool set amongst luxuriant gardens. Happi Village champions sustainability by being an intimate retreat for nature lovers. Most properties are ideal for small groups, and some like Cherengin Hills Convention and Spa Resort, provide meeting facilities.

The forests around Janda Baik include Lentang Recreation Forest beside the highway to Kuantan. Its mountain stream ensures its popularity for swimming and picnics. Nearby, Tanah Aina Fareena Restaurant has a riverside setting where diners are served in forested surroundings.
